16.2.4 Participatory bodies for stakeholder engagement

The university ensures diverse external stakeholder participation through structured governance bodies such as Faculty Advisory Boards. These boards are explicitly designed to be inclusive and global in composition, incorporating leading international experts and industry representatives alongside local and national stakeholders. This strategic approach enriches our academic governance with worldwide perspectives, ensuring our programs remain at the forefront of global standards and practices. The Faculty of Oral and Dental Medicine Board of Advisors and the Faculty of Pharmacy Board of Advisors are examples of diverse external stakeholder participation.
